years. However, the energy bill now provides for only a three-year PTC extension. Such a short-term PTC threatens to continue the start-and-stop cycle that has plagued the renewable energy industry, particularly wind energy developers, for more than a decade as investments dry up when the existing PTC is set to expire and its supporters scurry around madly trying to get another extension.

Wind energy advocates may be tempted to support the pending energy bill arguing that a three-year PTC is far better than no PTC just as the solar investment tax incentives, geothermal reforms, Renewable Fuels Standard, and hydropower relicensing components are important and generally positive provisions that will benefit their respective industries. Similarly, advocates of energy efficiency can point to some gains that may come from the bill if enacted as now written. However, when weighed against the lopsided provisions to advance fossil fuels and nuclear power, it is questionable whether the end result will actually move this country closer to a sustainable energy future.

Moreover, the recent series of closed-door, Republican-dominated, conference meetings in which the House-Senate energy bill is being finalized, and which have largely excluded those Democrats who have championed the bill's efficiency and renewable energy provisions, have provided nuclear and fossil fuel lobbyists an opportunity to further skew the bill the wrong way.

Consequently, even if the Congress approves and the President ultimately signs an energy bill this year, the nation's energy policy work won't be done. The bill that is likely to emerge is one that will evade the problems of energy imports, global warming, and electric grid stability. It is also one that will fail to incorporate an adequate Renewable Portfolio Standard, auto fuel efficiency standards, aggressive appliance and industrial efficiency standards, mandatory net metering and transmission standards, and a sufficient mix of tax incentives and federally-funded R&D programs to move the nation away from its reliance on fossil fuels and nuclear power.

Under the circumstances, while many weary renewable energy and energy efficiency advocates may wince at the prospect, it would likely be far better to have no energy bill than the one that seems to be nearing completion.

A TRIBUTE TO JOANNE KONKLE ON HER RETIREMENT AS ADMIN-ISTRATOR OF THE CALHOUN COUNTY MEDICAL CARE FACIL-ITY

HON. NICK SMITH

OF MICHIGAN

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 28, 2003

Mr. SMITH of Michigan. Mr. Speaker, I rise today to honor Joanne Konkle on her well deserved retirement following more than 30 years of dedicated service to the health and well-being of the citizens of Calhoun County, Michigan.

For the past 19 years, Joanne has served as the Administrator of the Calhoun County Medical Care Facility. In this capacity, Joanne has been responsible for the management and operation of the facility, which serves the needs of some of the county's most vulnerable senior citizens. Her leadership and sound fiscal stewardship has earned the center numerous quality awards and a reputation of being one of the most outstanding medical care facilities in the State of Michigan.

Joanne's career accomplishments are notable not only because they are numerous, but also because they represent a dedicated focus on service to others. In addition to her work as a Clinical Social Worker at the V.A. Medical Center, Joanne is a member and past president of the Michigan County Medical Care Facilities Council, served three-terms as a Calhoun County commissioner, 24 years as a member of the Community Mental Health Board and, for the past 45 years, has served as a board member of the Calhoun County Association for Retarded Citizens.

She has been a staunch supporter and volunteer for organizations such as the Substance Abuse Council, Special Olympics and the Alzheimer's Association, as well as a passionate advocate on issues and legislation affecting the elderly and mentally handicapped.

While so much of her life has been dedicated to others, Joanne has never lost sight of the importance of family. She and her husband Ted have been married for 51 years, and have raised four wonderful children. In addition, seven grandchildren and five great grandchildren will undoubtedly play a major role in the Konkle's retirement plan.

I am honored to recognize Joanne Konkle for her commitment to community and her tireless and selfless service to others. I wish her and her family all the best as she embarks on a well deserved retirement.

AND NOW, THE REST OF THE STORY

HON. DOUG BEREUTER

OF NEBRASKA

IN THE HOUSE OF REPRESENTATIVES

Tuesday, October 28, 2003

Mr. BEREUTER. Mr. Speaker, the editorial entitled "Support for America's Iraq effort is evident" from the October 10, 2003, Norfolk Daily News highlights a recent Gallup Poll in which nearly two-thirds of Baghdad residents who were polled still support the removal of Saddam Hussein despite the personal hardships the war has created for them.

Furthermore, the editorial notes that the United States and Great Britain are by no means alone in implementing peacekeeping missions in Iraq and then correctly commends the efforts of the Czech Republic, Hungary, and Kazakhstan—countries which, like Iraq, were only fairly recently released from the bonds of tyranny.

Mr. Speaker, this Member encourages his colleagues to read this editorial for these stories are receiving far too little attention elsewhere in the American, and indeed, the world media.

[From the Norfolk Daily News, Oct. 10, 2003] OUR VIEW

Contrary to indications left by brief news reports, the effort to bring order and self-determination to Iraq has been joined by a variety of nations. They have committed forces, and are united in the fight against tyranny. And a majority of Baghdad's residents regard Saddam's removal as worth their hardships.

SUPPORT FOR AMERICA'S IRAQI EFFORT IS EVIDENT

Two false impressions left by daily reports from Iraq are that the effort to depose Saddam Hussein had little support from the people of that nation and that America is going it alone, though with some help from its major ally, Great Britain.

Contrary information gets too little attention, for random acts of violence and controversy about the United Nations role—or lack of it—grap the headlines lack of it—grab the headlines.

America's openness to political debate and its free press help to feed such impressions.

Reading more than the headlines or listening to more than sound bites provides a more balanced view.

Of special importance was the recent Gallup Poll taken five months after occupation of Baghdad: Two-thirds of the residents of that city, home of many Saddam loyalists and hard hit despite unusually precise military targeting, indicated to the pollsters that the dictator's removal was worth the hardships forced on them.
